Sodexo Independent Education appoints new business development director

10 July 2013

Sodexo, the world's largest services company, has appointed Candice Eves as business development director for Independent Education.

Candice joins Sodexo following three successful years at BaxterStorey where she worked as a business development manager. She will report directly to Jeremy Alderton, managing director for Sodexo Independent Education, and will help Sodexo firmly establish itself as a leading player in delivering excellence to the independent schools market.

Jeremy Alderton said, "This is an incredibly important role and I am confident Candice's experience in business development and her culinary focus will be a powerful combination in driving our business forward".

Candice Eves said, "I am absolutely delighted to have joined the Independents by Sodexo team and already feel totally at home. With 100% retention for the last year and a couple of fantastic recent contract wins, I have no doubt we can build upon this success and grow the business further".
